

The NEW APPD Mentoring Program – Two Mentoring Options Offered

In response to requests made by the APPD membership, the APPD Mentorship Program has been revised. The New Mentoring Program is designed to be flexible and support educators in meeting their career, program, and personal goals related to residency education. Two modes of mentoring will be offered at the 2010 Spring Meeting:

- Traditional Dyadic Mentoring
- Facilitated Peer Group Mentoring

In traditional dyadic mentoring, one mentor is matched with one mentee based on common interests and often, geography. The dyad participates in a bi-directional relationship. In facilitated peer group mentoring, a senior mentor is assigned to a small group of mentees. The group members serve as peer mentors to each other while working on common interests or projects. The senior mentor, often a content expert, facilitates the process.

Participating in the APPD Mentoring Program can benefit individuals in several ways through opportunities to: 1) develop an area of interest and expertise with a person who has experience in that particular area; 2) assist you in creating your professional development plan; 3) stimulate creative projects resulting in scholarly activities; and/or 4) create professional relationships outside of your own institution. We look forward to your involvement.
